

Getting to know you PCSO

Every area in Torbay has a police community support officer (PCSO). The job of a PCSO is to

- walk the streets getting to know people who live there
- help with problems people have in their neighbourhood
- help people feel safe in the area they live

Torbay NHS Care Trust Torbay Care Trust, Safer Communities, Devon &

Cornwall police and the Learning Disability Partnership Board want to find ways to help people with learning disabilities and families feel safe where they live. People have told us this is important.

The PCSO will arrange to visit you and have a chat about what they do. You can ask for your PCSO to come and see you again or just to say hi when they see you.

They will tell you how you can contact them if you are worried or have a problem.

You can talk to them about any bullying or things you are worried about where you live.
